Color Count OK'd By School Board

The School Committee unanimously authorized taking of the state-required racial count in Andover schools at a special meeting

Thursday, leaving the way open for any teacher opposed to participating to turn the job over to the principal of his school.

The vote reversed an earlier decision and was taken because previously dissenting members asked an opportunity to reconsider. Chairman Robert Sherman and Members Cole and Moody were initially opposed to the count because teachers are required to make a personal judgment about which students are white and non-white.

Board Sees Merit In Sewerage Plan

Plaque Honors Henry Sanborn

A commemorative plaque honoring former School Supt. Henry Sanborn was unveiled Thursday at the Lovejoy St. school named in his memory.

Watching as Benjamin Chase, secretary of the school building committee, unveiled the bronze tablet were his widow, Mrs. Henry C. Sanborn and his son George, Knight Sanborn a biology instructor at Phillips Academy.

Speaking briefly were Supt. Edward I. Erickson, Town Manager Richard J. Bowen and Sanborn Principal Joseph M. Normandy.

A number of municipal officials and members of the Sanborn building committee attended the informal ceremony which was followed by a tour of the building.

In his remarks, Supt. Erickson recalled that Mrs. Sanborn had served for a period as an art teacher in the Andover schools.

The Andover Board of Selectmen said in a three page statement Monday that it has not and will not drag its feet in working toward any economical and "administratively feasible" plan for cleaning up the Merrimack River.

The statement was an answer to what the board termed "misleading impressions" about its reaction to a proposed regional sewerage project that would cost Andover, North Andover, Methuen and Lawrence an estimated $21 million.

Reports following a four-town conference held in Lawrence Oct. 6 by officials of the State Department of Health indicated that the three smaller communities were responsible for the fact that immediate action was not taken to get legislation leading to a referendum into the hopper by the second week of December, the General Court's deadline.

Refuting this, the board said that Andover representatives had not gone to the conference prepared to make an on-the-spot commitment, adding that health officials had given no advance notice that the meeting was for any purpose other than discussion.

The board rapped the Commonwealth for ordering a river clean up without making provisions for financial aid to the communities hit with the demand.

The statement read: "... It strikes the Board as something more than ironic, though no less than can be expected, that the Commonwealth be demanding that the municipalities spend more money without offering any tangible interest in solving a problem which in the overall is a State problem."

Manager Richard Bowen elaborated in discussion to say that the state has increased welfare costs, civil service pays and other such items without giving Massachusetts communities any relief

Debate Viet War Views

The numerous conflicting viewpoints that enter into the disputes about the character of the war in Vietnam will be discussed at an open meeting to be presented by the social action committee of Free Church in the parish hall at 8 p.m. Monday.

Among questions to be raised: Is the war one of Communist aggression? or of nationalism? Or is it a Civil War?

Edwin Moise, professor of mathematics and education at Harvard, a participant in university teach-ins, will speak for the organization, Massachusetts Political Action for Peace. He will

Though the main church sanctuary will not be ready for another six to eight weeks, the fellowship hall, study, fireplace room and seven class rooms are now ready for occupancy.

The general contractor, George Fischera, is making a special effort this week to complete final details for the church to move in this week-end. The congregation is arranging the fellowship hall as the worship area and teachers are setting up classrooms for the first session.

In making this announcement Rev. Keith Munson, minister of the church said, "It was just one year ago, on Oct. 25, 1964, that we held our ground breaking ceremonies. The progress that has been made in the construction is gratifying and it is indeed significant that we open the church for our first service just one year later."

Completion of the main sanctuary is expected in early December with a tentative date for the dedication services in January.

CENTRAL PLANS PTA PROGRAMS

Jack Manning, president of the Central School PTA, has announced a schedule of programs which will include a panel of foreign students discussing "Foreign Aid to Education" and a debate by the Junior High School debating team.

Attendance banners were awarded to Mrs. Moore's first grade and Betty H. Richardson's second grade.

Cronin Gives GOP Award

Selectman Paul W. Cronin gave a banquet audience Wednesday the time is past when the young man can dissent for the sake of dissenting alone. Young Americans in both major political parties must, he said, face up to solving problems.

The occasion was a Graduate Lawrencian gathering of young Republicans, held to present organization's second Young Distinguished Service Award to Cronin.

Making the keynote address Congressman Donald Rumsfeld, Illinois, the youngest Republican in Congress. The legislator emphasized the role of the young in government. Rumsfeld is member of the House Select Committee on Assassinations and has with a number of other top legislative committees.

In his remarks, Cronin pointed out that recent statistics show that by 1970 half of all voters in the U. S. will be under the age 30. He raised the question whether or not a sufficient number of them would be prepared to assume leadership roles.

Selectman Roger Collins, chairman for the award ceremony and Arthur W. Spradione, vice chairman.

On the committee were: Philip K. Allen, David C. Alexander, Harvey Jr., Jr., T. E. Chart, Diane Knipe, Phil Monroe, Milton Lebowitz, August the Sheehy, Dan Dodson, Jr., Wilson, Marcia Davidson, M. Sweet, Phyllis Dantos, H. Moorikdian, Althea Wood, August Fischell, Janet Golen, D. Golen, Robert Barrett, Dan Walbridge, Dean K. Webster, Arthur Neumark, Susan Mackin, and Mary Elise Wadsworth.

count when it was first discussed, admitted that they would likely have taken a different position had they fully understood the facts. Mrs. Moody said she was not aware that the State Supreme Court had already ruled that the count expressed the intent of the legislature when it voted to use this technique of finding out where de facto segregation situations may exist.

Mrs. Cole said she had understood the legal implications spelled out in a letter from the state department of education which Erickson read and reread in an attempt to bring the committee to an immediate reversal of its vote, but that she had not understood the reasons for the count. This she blamed on a lack of communications.

Temper flared, with Dr. Louis Galbiati stating that he resented the implication that the superintendent had not made the law clear, and Senior Member William A. Doherty chiding newer members of the policy board for their failure to take his advice.

"You get so worked up and steamed up that you feel you have to do something," he said. "... I say in deep humility... If you would listen to me sometimes you wouldn't get yourselves in all these troubles."

Both Sherman and Mrs. Moody defended their original positions with statements that defying a law that has not been tested is one valid form of protest. (See Mrs. Moody's letter to the editor on page 10) Galbiati accused them of setting a bad example for the school children of Andover.

Dr. Galbiati attacked Chairman Sherman verbally at the close of the meeting when he wanted to introduce the subject of a new South School and urge scheduling of a special town meeting to get the building underway in time for 1967 occupancy.

Sherman would not allow the introduction of additional subjects at the special meeting and used his gavel to silence Galbiati, which caused the irate member to say: "You made one mistake last week. Now you are making another... you happened to get caught up on that one because it showed."

Dr. Galbiati disagrees with the Board of Selectmen's position that it will move for construction of a new elementary school in time for 1968 occupancy at the latest. He wants a firm 1967 deadline.

German Measles

For centuries, this disease was confused with common measles. Not until 1740 did a German physician named Hoffman describe the condition as a separate entity.

The name "German measles" probably derives from the fact that the disease was first noted in Germany.

Another explanation sometimes offered is that the disease received its name because it was thought to be a false kind of measles—just as "German silver" is a false kind of silver.

from the financial burdens imposed.

Calling it "presumptuous at the least and perhaps even high-handed" of health officials to expect fast action on a "decision having the far-reaching implications of a regional sewerage treatment facility, the board noted that not until the availability of a sewerage study recently completed for Lawrence was there a comprehensive and definitive statement of the implications and the very feasibility of a regional approach to pollution of the Merrimack for municipalities to consider.

The Board of Selectmen feels that there maybe considerable merit to a well-conceived regional approach to curtailing the pollution of the Merrimack River. It is willing to move in this direction with all deliberate speed. The Board has no intention, however, of recommending to the voters of the Town of Andover any program or legislation which may be conceived in haste for the sake of meeting an arbitrary deadline without concern for the far-reaching consequences of any such action. The legislation required to bring before the voters of the Town the matter of a regional sanitary district must be the very best and the most comprehensive possible at the time of its submission first to the General Court. It cannot be (as suggested by the State Department of Health) something which can be changed easily later on. It is essential also that the voters of Andover be apprised of the program, its costs and other implications, as soon as possible and certainly before any enabling legislation is introduced.

GL Prep Club Is Scheduled

As many as 400 high school seniors are expected to enroll for the 1965 Greater Lawrence Prep Club, before the Nov. 3 starting date.

The club is a GL Chamber of Commerce project which brings seniors together with business and industrial leaders for a briefing on what kind of jobs they can expect to find after graduation, what kind of skills will be required and related questions. The program is directed primarily at the student who will begin work immediately after high school.

For the second year, Phillips Academy and Western Electric Co., North Andover, will be host to the club's two divisions.

Heading the Prep Club steering committee is James Caldwell who will also serve as overall program coordinator. Handling coordination at Phillips will be Miss Rachel Desrochers and at Western, the program will be coordinated by Arnold Spofford who is director of public relations for the Merrimack Valley Works.

The Prep Club is financed partially by the GL Chamber, but industries in the area cover the major expense.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Moldt, formerly of Pine St., have recently taken up residence in Indianapolis, Ind.

GROCERIES - The Heart of a Supermarket

Around the sides, a modern supermarket may have meats, produce and bakery. But the great center, consisting of hundreds and hundreds of feet of loaded shelves, is the grocery department. Here is where the shopper does her heaviest buying.

The Andover CO-OP is proud of its grocery department. And why not? It has more variety than most supermarkets. It has far more bargains than we can print below. Among its best buys are the CO-OP label products. These give you top quality at a price that will raise your eyebrows, as our savviest shoppers know.

For the revealing details about genuine bargains in our grocery department, ask Ray Fuller. He knows his groceries!

Moreover, you will always find courteous clerks on our floor who are ready to help you, and we have delivery boys who will gladly put your CO-OP purchases right into your car.

Electronic Snooping

While we are expressing concern about potential invasions of privacy, why is it that few voices are heard protesting the proliferation of electronic snooping devices?

When the manufacturer of "bugged" attache cases, cuff links and tie clasps can boast his wares on a national TV show with all the aplomb of a Fuller brush man displaying the latest in bristle brushes, Big Brother seems less a fiction.

To our way of thinking this kind of thing offers infinitely more insidious possibilities than the outright questioning of Americans, even young Americans, about their background, environment and attitudes.

There was a soft pedaling of ethical and legal objections to wiretapping, the forerunner of electronic eavesdropping, when it was primarily a cloak and dagger technique for getting the goods on big time crooks and tax evaders.

But we have progressed from public to private wiretapping and from wiretapping to the use of sensitive, transistorized mechanisms now being used to give the unscrupulous verbatim records of personal conversations.

When bugged boutonnières and cigarette cases and pictures frames and desk sets are available commercially, we cannot refuse to admit the possibility that the time may come when a neighbor will poke into our private affairs for the sheer delight of it. When the public is advised that it can purchase minute electronic items that will help husbands and wives keep tabs on who says what to their mates in the family automobile, we have at hand the means to make personal snooping a national pastime. The implications are myriad.

It is doubtful that legal curbs could be devised which would eliminate this possibility. Our hope is that the spectre of 1984 will prove a sufficiently frightening deterrent.

75 Years Ago - October, 1890

Mr. Warren B. Chadwick, JHS '83, son of J. G. Chadwick and Marion V. Lawson, daughter of Mr. William Lawson, were married at the residence of the bride's parents, corner Second St.

Apropos the petition in circulation for better light at the depot, it seems in order to speak of the even greater need for better light at Memorial Hall Library and Town Hall. We understand that the introduction of electricity has been considered for both places, but that the powers that be cannot see their way to afford it at the price asked by the Electric Co.

Geo. H. Thwing has sold his estate on the corner of Summer St. and Washington Ave. to Joseph F. Cole.

Edward Jameson of West Parish is to enter the employ of the Sulphur Bitters Co. as advertising agent, and will leave for South Dakota the first of next week.

Rev. James J. Bryant of this town has been nominated by the Prohibitionists as candidate for representative in this district.

Capt. R. C. Reed has bought of Mrs. F. G. Hunkings the farm formerly owned by Simon Wardwell in the Holt District, and is busy improving the outside appearance of the house thereon.

50 Years Ago - October, 1915

Joseph Cushing has purchased a new Ford roadster.

From the Ministers' Assn. in Boston, letters are being sent to ministers through the State calling upon them to organize for Shaw and prohibition. From the Christian Endeavor Society in Boston (managed by William H. Shaw) letters have been sent to local C. E. Societies asking the members to go to Shaw rallies and help the Shaw campaign.

Now all together cry, "Separate church and state!"

Our Andover Wild Life Sanctuary seems to be justifying both the reasons of its foundation. Local naturalists who have kept tabs during the summer report that various small insect-eating birds, especially bluebirds, have nested in the boxes, that have been put up for them and that the wild life is increasing.

Miss Lollie Knight won first prize for her fairy costume at the masquerade party given by Ralph Garland in Boston on Wednesday evening.

Working now on a plan to put Memorial Hall Library on wheels is the new librarian, Miss Miriam Putnam, who entered the library over a year ago when its circulation was skyrocketing. . . It's been going up, now she wants it to go out.

A self-appointed circulation manager named J. Everett Collins came into the office the other day and presented a plan whereby we could sell something like 1,972 extra papers. All we had to do was to alphabetize that many names, in our smallest type it would take over three pages . . . the names of all men between the ages of 21 and 35 in Andover, North Andover and Boxford whose duty it is to learn their draft number.

Frank M. Benton is out on the Pacific coast these days on a years leave of absence from his duties as Latin instructor at Phillips Academy.

Watching Harvard tie the Army last Saturday in the stadium were Mr. and Mrs. Dana Clark, Mr. and Mrs. David L. Coutts, Mrs. Herbert Allicon and Officer Joe Davis.

Monday has arrived for the Boy Scouts. Mobilization for them is going to mean the signing of a pledge by the boys, parents, relatives and friends, the forming of an emergency service corps, increasing membership, intensifying training.

10 Years Ago - October, 1955

The School committee will ask the town meeting next March for a new school in Ballardvale. Chairman Anna Greeley told a joint meeting of the planning board, school committee and members of the finance committee that the board will go ahead with plans for a school to replace the Bradlee school.

The planning board has banned all sub-divisions in a huge block of land bordering on North Andover - including proposed developments off Elm St. - until the town's master plan is completed. In all, plans are before the board for some 125 homes in that area. The recreation committee and representatives of PTA groups and other organizations have planned fun and food for boys and girls Halloween night.

The four-room addition to the Shawsheen School will be built. Joyce Dunlop was elected president of the South church Pilgrim Fellowship at a recent meeting.

Miss Drucilla Flather, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Flather Jr., 45 Abbot St., has been elected fire chief at Katherine Gibbs School.

What Our Readers Say—

To the Editor of the Townsman: I would appreciate the opportunity to elaborate on a point which was raised at the Special School Committee meeting held this evening.

My statement that "I would defy a law which I did not believe in," should carry the following qualification. The principle being challenged must be of significant magnitude to violate a basic freedom.

One way to change a law is to defy it and to challenge the consequences through the proper judicial channels. The Constitution provides that the Supreme Court is charged to rule on the Constitutionality of legislation only after being called upon to adjudge the legal rights of the litigants in actual controversy.

I was taught and believe the children of today must be taught to be law abiding citizens. I trust they will also be taught, in those rare instances, when their basic rights and freedoms are threatened they will labor to change those laws even to the point of carrying litigation procedures to the Supreme Court.

Barbara G. Moody

Andover School Committee

To the Editor of the Townsman: Andover householders have a golden opportunity in 1966 to continue the policy they started when they rejected Urban Renewal as unnecessary consumption. Everyone will have noticed how the lawns have withstood the dry spell since the water was turned off. We propose that hoses be not brought out at all next year. Grass can be fertilized, cut and raked to one's heart's desire, accepting the rain that falls instead of consuming the meagre supply so necessary for other uses.

This procedure will save perhaps $20 per family, for water, as well as for less frequent mowing. But the living with nature is the real beauty of the plan. Join us.

Happy 1966 to Andover.

Bark Fibers Make Snug Squirrel Nest

Living close to most homes in New England is the mammal that few persons ever see: the flying squirrel.

Even when they discover a flying squirrel's nest, most persons fail to recognize it. These nests of shredded bark frequently are found in bird houses. Any bird house which "was not used" during the summer, but is found crammed full of bark fibers when taken down in the autumn, may have served as a flying squirrel nest.

Usually the discovery of the nest comes as a surprise. For flying squirrels do not venture abroad during daylight. Therefore, the bird box they use appears vacant, with no daytime activity around it.

A recent windstorm blew down a martin house maintained by a neighbor in Harvard. He noticed when he picked up the house that "a mouse jumped out and ran up a tree." He took the house into his cellar and when he opened a bark-crammed compartment, three more "mice" leaped out, one escaping through the cellar door, another running into the mouth of the family cat, and the third fleeing behind a water tank.

The one rescued from the cat and the other, soon rounded up in the cellar, proved to be not mice but young flying squirrels, about five or six weeks old and ready to leave the nest.

Although they have furry tails, flying squirrels give a flash impression of a fleeing mouse. They have black-and-gray fur, so mousey-colored that their scientific name translates: "the flying gray mouse." But they are not mice. Neither do they fly. They are small squirrels - the size of chipmunks.

The few persons who do see flying squirrels in the wild usually discover them in a window blind feeder, eating sunflower seeds at night. Occasionally a flying squirrel makes a "thud" sound when landing on a bird-feeder and attracts attention.

Cats and owls, both of which are abroad at the same hours as the flying squirrel's nestmates in most neighborhoods in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine, the family cat can be expected to bring home at least one flying squirrel a year.

The flying squirrel has enormous black eyes, so specialized for seeing in darkness that the animals avoid any strong light. The Massachusetts Audubon Society exhibits small colonies of flying squirrels in its live animal collections at Drumlin Farm, Lincoln; Wachusett Meadows Wildlife Sanctuary, Princeton; and Pleasant Valley Wildlife Sanctuary in Lenox. The animals at the sanctuaries are active during daylight hours because a red light in these special enclosures simulates darkness, much as it does in a photographic darkroom.

Flying squirrels have no wings. They do not "fly", but rather glide. The squirrel has loose skin along each side and anchors at the front and hind leg. It climbs trees as other squirrels do. It also has the ability to leap from a tree, extend its legs - thus stretching the loose skin folds - like the surface of a kite-and glide with considerable accuracy down to a bird-feeder or another perch.

Before leaping, a wild flying squirrel sways its head from side to side several times, apparently taking a measurement of distance to its goal. The squirrels have been known to glide 150 feet, but the average aerial trip is 20 to 30 feet.

Dam Project Is Delayed

Town Manager Richard Bowen admitted this week that it is probably already too late for the town to get its Fish Brook dam in place to catch the full spring runoff as planned.

He told Taxpayers' President Robert Neil Kirk at a selectmen meeting Monday that federal funds to help pay for the $1 million project still have not come through. The legislation is passed but has yet to be signed. Even after the money bill is OK'd there will be time lag while application forms are readied by the federal agency assigned to administer the measure.

Bowen said alternate plans which would permit the town to catch about 75 percent of the runoff are being prepared. If federal aid is not cleared in time to allow for the necessary 180 working days for the final project, the town will dig a sump hole where Fish Brook intersects with High Plain Rd. and attempt to borrow Civil Defense lines and pumps to get the water trapped to Haggett's Pond, the manager explained.

Towns Discuss Highway Plans

Andover and Wilmington selectmen met Monday to discuss the possibility of cooperation on highway improvements in the Lowell Junction area that could make the land there attractive to industrial firms.

Selectman Paul Cronin suggested that both towns improve their streets in the border area and then go after state construction of a connector link.

Selectmen from both boards agreed that such a project could benefit both communities, but they agreed also that there are a number of problems to be tackled.

A Wilmington official said "You are proposing quite a project," as he pointed out that his town would have to undertake the costly widening and straightening of Ballardvale St. where it approaches the Andover border.

Selectmen from the neighboring community said that long range plans do include improvements to the street, however, because they foresee residential development in one area that feeds off it and industrial development in another.

Men from both boards will continue discussion of the plan when they view the area in question at the perambulate the Andover-Wilmington line Saturday.

LAND TAKING IS POSSIBLE

The Board of Selectmen will make a decision about whether or not to move for a land taking of the Shortes property on Park St. if owner William Shortes has not replied in writing to their offer of something in excess of $26,000 by their next meeting. Shortes has indicated verbally that he does not find the appraised price adequate. Town Meeting authorized the board to go, as high as $40,000 but professional appraisals of the area indicated this figure was in excess of actual value.

Phillips Alumni Discuss
Broadening Student Body

The Phillips Academy Alumni Council dug into the subject of "Whom Should Andover Serve . . . and Why?" at its fall meeting held Friday and Saturday on the PA campus.

More than 80 alumni from various parts of the country attended the two-day session which was presided over by Gilbert H. Hood Jr., of Marblehead, council president.

Headmaster John M. Kemper opened the Friday session, stating that he would like to see PA serve boys from the broadest possible cross-section of socio-economic backgrounds. He also emphasized that the academy must continue to pursue a role of developing ideas and techniques which other schools might find useful.

Speaking Friday evening was Thomas T. Lyons, instructor in history, who tossed out for discussion the suggestion that the academy make a strong effort to broaden, the socio-economic, ethnic, racial, and cultural composition of its student body and at the same time consider doing the same for its faculty. He emphasized that students today must learn and live within a pluralistic society if they are to know how to live in the pluralistic society outside of their school world. He also pointed out that "diversity in background and viewpoint would add a vitality and an abrasiveness beneficial to the entire (PA) community". For purposes of discussion, Lyons suggested that PA admit 100 boys from low socio-economic backgrounds, roughly one out of eight students.

Director of Admissions Robert W. Sides pointed out that although almost one third of the student body receives financial aid, the average family income of scholarship holders in 1964 was about $8,000, a figure considerably above the U. S. average family income.

On Saturday the discussion was picked up by a panel composed of Charles F. Dey, director of the Dartmouth ABC Program; James E. Simmons, executive director of the Independent Schools Talent Search Program; and Frank M. Eccles, '43, instructor in mathematics and director of the Lawrence Group Program for the Andover Summer Session, all of whom discussed programs underway to serve students from this broad spectrum of backgrounds.

Henry S. Dyer, '23, vice president of Educational Testing Service, summarized the weekend discussion and then went on to point out that Phillips Academy's objectives must remain clear; to educate boys so that they will be able to contribute through their experience at P.A. to a better society.

Boston Edison Speaker Here

The first in a series of public meetings sponsored by the Andover Citizens for Equal Opportunity and designed to bring a greater understanding of the Negro movement to our area, will be held Oct. 26, John Puma will speak at Kemper Auditorium, Phillips Academy, across from Andover Inn, at 8 p.m. on "Negro Employment in Massachusetts."

Puma is staff assistant to the vice president, Boston Edison Co. and a recent Sloane Fellow at MIT. He will give information on characteristics of Negro employees, Negro Employment opportunities, the role of the Southern Negro in Massachusetts and the Jobs Clearing House.

Andover Citizens for Equal Opportunities was organized last year to promote better understanding between all people in the community. The organization has sponsored the Wide Horizons education program for children in Lawrence and Andover, has circulated a Good Neighbor Housing pledge and is continuing to work in both the fields of education and housing. This year a series of four public meetings will be held to bring home to people in Andover the many different ways they are involved in one of the nation's greatest problems.

Membership in the organization is open to all interested.

An election of officers for the coming year will be held at the Oct. 26 meeting. The public is invited.

GRANGE SUPPER

Andover Grange #183 will serve a roast beef supper at Grange Hall, Shawsheen Rd., Saturday, Nov. 13, at 6 p.m.

Tickets are available from Mrs. Alex Henderson, Theodore Peterson and Floyd Darby in charge of the supper.

Mrs. James R. Adriance is Andover chairman for the Boston Museum of Fine Arts' biennial membership drive entitled "Compounding Art Interest", on Nov. 5. Mrs. Adriance will have the help of five other Andover museum members.

The goal is for each present member to sign up at least five new members. In this way, Mrs. Adriance and her 69 fellow-members of the Ladies Committee of the museum hope to increase membership by 1500 names.

Since it was founded in 1956, the Ladies Committee of the museum has put in long hours to boost membership from 2,000 to 10,500. It must continue to grow, however, for membership support is vital to the programs of this world-famous museum. It is the only major institution of its kind which receives no support from city, state or federal government.

Membership is not just a question of giving, but of receiving privileges in return. A partial listing of these includes evening previews of special exhibitions which are for members and their guests only; free admission to the eight great classic talkies featured in this year's "History of the American Film" program; a large members' discount on many items at the sales desk, as well as art classes and subscription lecture series; a free subscription to the

BUSINESS PROFILESCome See This Year's Models

Clark Motor Company, originally located on Park Street in Andover and now located at 273 South Union Street in Lawrence, has a huge lot full of 1966 Plymouths, Chryslers, Valiants, Imperials, and Barracudas - all colors and models. These brand new Chrysler Corporation cars were delivered last week and some are already in the showroom awaiting your inspection. This year's Chrysler comes in four models: New Yorker, 300, Newport, and Town and Country Wagons. All of them have tremendous power for engines ranging up to 235 h.p. Plymouth for '66 offers five models: Fury, VIP, Belvedere, Valiant, and Barracuda. If you don't find a car exactly suited for you, Clark Motors will gladly order one according to your own specifications. Or, maybe you could check Clark's fine selection of quality used cars. You'll be happy to know that all cars sold at Clark are guaranteed for 5 years or 50,000 miles. Why don't you drop into the showroom at 273 South Union Street soon? For your convenience, Clark

Motors is open evenings.

Last year Clark Motor Company moved from Andover to its present address in Lawrence after Mr. Barenboim and Mr. Leoff, the owners, decided to combine Clark Motors with the Plymouth Center of Lawrence. Ever since, Clark Motors has, of course, continued to provide customers with expert repair work, a good selection of new and used cars, and friendly service which have, in the past, been ever so important in pleasing customers and maintaining its cherished reputation.

OCTOBER

- 21 Ballardvale branch Littlest Listeners, 10-10:45 a.m.
23 Saturday, Main library and Children's room open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
26 Littlest Listeners, Coons, Children's room, 10-10:45 a.m.

Littlest Listeners

Thursday morning the Littlest Listeners of Ballardvale start a new fall program of stories and games at the branch, Mrs. William MacCausland, branch librarian announces. LL's will have their get-together every other week. If your 4 or 5 year old boy or girl would like to be put on the waiting list for a possible vacancy later on, please get in touch with Mrs. MacCausland. The branch is open Mondays and Thursdays from 2 to 5 and from 6 to 8 p.m. Winter Hours

The Main library having weathered its shut-down due to moving the adult and young adult departments to the top floor, is now keeping its regular winter schedule. Weekdays these departments are open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and the Children's room in its usual place is open weekdays from 2 to 6 p.m. On Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. all departments of the Main library are open.

Extended Loans

As an added service "for the duration", while operating out of the top floor, an extended loan period is available on certain books - all books over a year old except textbooks and titles on reading lists or reserve lists may be charged to a borrower for three months if requested at time of charging out at the desk. It is hoped that this liberal loan period will compensate readers who hesitate to take many trips up the additional library steps to reach the top floor.

The current three-month period lasts until January 15. The next period will run from January 15 to April 15. Borrowers who wish may take out enough books at one time to last the entire period. Help will be provided, if wanted, to get the larger number of books to the borrower's car.

Where it is more convenient for borrowers to make use of the branch library, the telephone recently installed at Ballardvale makes any volume in the Main library available to a branch patron within a couple of days. The only restrictions are that textbooks, reserved, and reading-list titles are available only in the usual way.

Overpass To Be Named For Rev. Henry Smith

REV. HENRY B. SMITH, OSA

A simple ceremony is planned for the dedication Sunday of the Rt. 495 overpass in Andover to the late Rev. Henry B. Smith, OSA, for seven years pastor of St. Augustine's Church.

A High Mass is to be held at the church at 10 a.m. and ceremonies at the junction of Rts. 28 and 1-495 are arranged for 2:30 p.m.

Rev. James A. Wenzel, OSA, assistant at St. Augustine's, will open with the invocation. William M. Willits, a long time friend of the former pastor, will speak and Rev. Frederick B. Noss of South Congregational Church will pronounce the benediction.

Philip K. Allen, chairman of the Andover Board of Selectmen, will close the ceremony with the salute to the United States flag.

Rev. Smith was born July 6, 1905 and professed in the Augustinian Order of the Catholic church on August 16, 1926. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1933 and assigned to St. Augustine's parish in Detroit, Mich. where he spent two years.

His next assignment was Andover which he served as curate until June of 1956 when he was appointed pastor. He held this post until his death on July 25, 1963.

Particularly active in promoting parish activity in behalf of the young, Rev. Smith was pastor during the period when expansion of St. Augustine's school was planned and undertaken.

Police Unaware Of Local Betting

Chief David Nicoll said late last week that he is satisfied that six Andover officers who frequented an Elm Square grill prior to a State Police raid on Sept. 29 were not involved in any way with the bookie operation uncovered there.

He said also that his investigation showed the officers did not have any prior knowledge of the syndicate betting. The grill was raided at Nicoll's request.
